

May 1, 2006

In case of emergency

Edited by Dave Kovaleski

Private Jet Services Group has an offer you might find hard to refuse. Its new Airline Contingency Program will provide last-minute worldwide airlift for your group in the event that natural disasters, political unrest, labor strikes, or commercial airline interruptions leave attendees stranded. To enroll, just provide the Hampton, N.H. — based company with basic information on upcoming trips, and, at no cost, PJS will create multiple contingency programs and keep a stand-by agreement on file. Costs will apply only when airlift is engaged. www.pjsgroup.com.